It is a pre-condition of an Accredited Agent application that you disclose your criminal record, other than traffic violations or any spent or lapsed convictions (as those terms are defined in relevant Commonwealth, State or Territory legislation) held by you and consent to AFL Players' Association conducting a criminal record check. As part of the application process, the AFL Players' Association undertakes criminal record checks to enable it to determine whether applicants are likely to satisfy the inherent requirements of being a player agent. Integrity and honesty are essential requirements for accreditation as a player agent.

Your criminal record information will be considered in assessing your application. Your application may be refused if:

- It is determined your criminal record affects your ability to perform the requirements of a player agent; or
- You provide false or misleading information about your criminal record.

If you choose not to provide criminal record information or choose not to consent to a criminal record check, your application will not be considered by AFL Players' Association.

We will retain the criminal record check for as long as authorised by law. If you require any further information regarding this please contact Alex Davey at agents@aflplayers.com.au.
